

Local and Personal.

Wallapai mountain is capped with snow.

W. E. Frost is in from his Wallapai Springs ranch.

F. W. Theis, superintendent of the Southwestern Mining and Reduction Company, is in from Chloride.

Mr. Carpenter, manager of the Temple Bar mines, has been in Kingman a number of days this week.

James A. Smith has returned from Eugene Camp, where he completed the annual assessment work on his mining properties.

W. A. Laswell hauled 30,000 pounds of freight to White Hills, this week, for the Excelsior M. & M. Company. This company is preparing to operate its mines on a grand scale.

Mr. Fleischman has returned from the Senator mine and mill, having made a thorough examination of the condition of that property. He informs us that it was his intention to start work on the property after the first of the year.

Col. Harley Fay's two-story brick building is almost completed. When finished it will be the handsomest and most commodious building in town. Col. Fay is one of our best citizens and we hope to see him make a fortune in his new quarters.

White Hills is to have a Christmas tree and entertainment for the little ones on Christmas eve. The affair will be in charge of H. Hobart. The people of White Hills are sure to make of it an interesting and enjoyable affair for the little folks.

W. J. Phipps, a merchant of Los Angeles, who has been developing a group of copper claims on the Colorado river north of White Hills, is in Kingman. It is Mr. Phipps' intention to incorporate a company for the development of his properties.

No children will be allowed on the floor at the K. P. ball next Thursday evening, nor will any person under the influence of liquor be allowed to enter the building. The crowd at the ball will be a large one and all the floor space will be necessary for grown up people.

The Los Angeles Parkhurst committee have had a number of courtesans arrested for selling liquor after midnight and on the stand the ministers admitted that they had visited every saloon and bawdy house in the tenderloin district between 9:30 p. m. and 3:00 a. m., and had drank various kinds of liquors in each place visited. If they drank the amount of intoxicants they claim to have absorbed they must have been in a condition that required the service of a hack to get them home. There are other ways of investigating morality than by becoming immoral.

Tom Kolar, a Wallapai Indian, died at the camp east of town last Thursday evening. Tom has been a character about Kingman since the organization of the town and his demise was loudly mourned by his dusky friends the live-long night. Tom was employed early in the week by W. M. Richards in cleaning up process Tom discovered a bottle of wood alcohol in one of the back rooms and, thinking it straight goods, proceeded to drink it to the dregs. Tom's copper-bottomed stomach that had stood every known grade of firewater for years, was not strong enough to stand this powerful brand. Despite the efforts of the doctor he sank gradually from the day of the debauch and is now enjoying the balmy and perfumed zephyrs of the happy hunting grounds.

R. J. Hartman has succeeded in bonding, for a New York syndicate, the Golden Rule mine, owned by H. R. McClure, Mr. Brown and W. A. Neal. The mine is located on Burro Creek and is an immense ledge, showing forty feet in width on the outcrop. The ledge has been cut on the surface a distance of twenty-five feet without encountering a wall. A shaft twenty feet deep shows a big body of ore and from the bottom a crosscut was run fifteen feet in pay ore. The mine lies in a splendid position for tunnel mining as it runs across a mountain hundreds of feet above the level of the canyon. Burro Creek is one of those mountain streams that flows through rocky and precipitous gorges, offering a cheap power for milling and mining purposes. No where in the county can ores be milled as cheaply as in the Burro Creek district, and we expect to see the new company milling thousands of tons of ore within the coming year.

Mrs. J. F. Phelan has been very ill during the week.

J. W. Green is getting good ore in his mining claim at Eureka Camp.

Hon. A. Cornwall, of the Big Sandy, was in Kingman several days this week.

E. G. McDermith, superintendent of the White Hills Company, was in town yesterday.

Don't forget to take your own or some other fellows best girl to the K. P. ball next Thursday evening.

O. L. Kuencer is home from a ten day's trip to White Hills, where he has been doing a great deal of surveying for the White Hills Company.

The Knights of Pythias of Kingman are making great preparations for their Christmas Eve ball. Anyone who misses it will miss a great treat.

Ed. Innes, supervisor-elect, was up from the Sandy this week to qualify himself for the important position to which the people have elected him.

Judge J. Logan arrived from his home on the Sandy and is prepared to remain in Kingman for two years. The Judge's many Kingman friends are glad to see him again in office.

All of Indian Territory, comprising some of the choicest lands in the United States, will probably be opened to white settlers as a result of the big convention of Indians that has just come to an end. The five civilized tribes sent their best and most noted men as delegates. Their final decision was a great victory for the Dawes' commission, that had been working for months to effect a reconciliation so the rich lands might be opened, as were those of Oklahoma district. The five civilized tribes are the Chickasaws, Choctaws, Creeks, Cherokees and Seminoles. They number over 65,000 Indians. They own the entire soil of Indian Territory. It includes 19,575,000 acres.—Record.

Last night the Kingman Dramatic Club gave "Our Neighbor's Wife" to a crowded house. Little Richard Taggart and Elenor Dennis delighted the audience with their cute ways and graceful dancing. The fancy dance by Marie Ver Mehr, Lillian Potts and Natalie Metcalfe was received with delight. Miss Bowman recited the "Spanish Duel" and gave as an encore "Hot Tomatoes." Miss Bowman has considerable histrionic ability and would undoubtedly make a great hit as an emotional actress. "Our Neighbor's Wife" while not up to the standard of the author's later works, was presented by the company in an excellent manner. Parker and Langford made a great hit and were presented with two large bouquets by Col. Charles O'Mally. Each one of the company is deserving of praise for the excellent manner in which they carried out their part.

Yavapai county has been sued for something over 200,000$ on account of the old P. & A. C. bonds. Poor old Yavapai is in a bad way. If she succeeds in defeating the bondholders in the suit Coconino county will come on to her for an annulment of the bond issued to the mother county at the time of the division.

James Bone, Great West mine, two tons shipped one carload to Pueblo.

The civil war ended more than thirty-one years ago. Yet there are 970,678 names on the pension rolls, and it will take 170,000,000$ of the people's money to pay their pensions during the next year. The total amount of pensions thus far paid is 2,034,817,769$, or nearly as much as the greatest public debt the nation ever owed. These facts are scandalous of course. They can only mean that hundreds of thousands of names are on the pension rolls that ought not to be there; that for political reasons laws, general and special, have been passed with shameful indifference to justice and to the rights of the great body of industrious people who must pay. The supreme court holds that a pension once granted is a vested right and cannot be withdrawn. But surely congress can now refrain from adding to the pension charge faster than natural causes reduce it.—New York World

A new plan for putting good books into the hands of the masses is the traveling library—that is, a library that stops at one place for six months and then moves to another town or neighborhood. Two philanthropists in Michigan and Wisconsin have fitted out a number of such enterprises, and they are said to be very helpful and popular. The libraries consist mainly of standard works and first class periodicals, and nothing is charged for the use of them. We don't see why we should not have traveling libraries as well as traveling preachers and churches on wheels, or anything else that has a tendency to bettering the condition of the people, and the two philanthropists in Michigan and Wisconsin certainly deserve the thanks and encouragement of the entire people regardless of party or creed, for their object is to do good.—El Paso Tribune.
